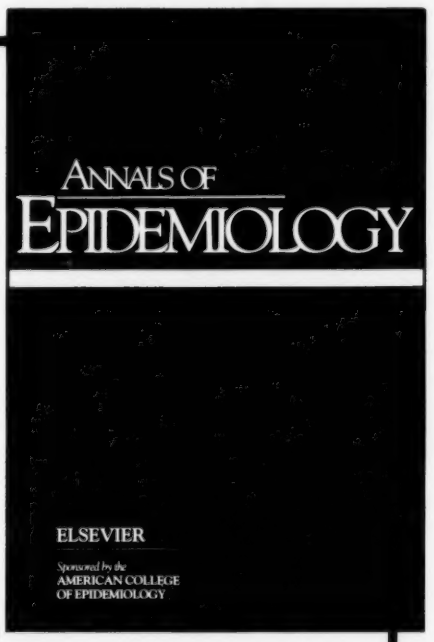
An important new resource in epidemiology

ANNALS OF EPIDEMIOLOGY



Co-Editors-in-Chief: Charles H. Hennekens, MD, and Julie E. Buring, DSc, Brigham & Women's Hospital, Harvard Medical School, Boston, MA, USA

Annals of Epidemiology is a new international journal publishing reports of original research in the epidemiology of chronic and acute diseases for clinicians as well as public health researchers. The journal covers research on the distribution and determinants of the current leading causes of morbidity and mortality in both developed and developing countries, including:

- coronary heart disease
- cancer
- infectious diseases
- birth defects
- injuries
- stroke
- AIDS
- alcoholism & drug addiction
- diseases of aging
- respiratory diseases

Sponsored by the American College of Epidemiology, Annals of Epidemiology is headed by an international editorial board bringing you the newest advances from around the world. Annals of Epidemiology features:

- original reports describing the results of new epidemiologic research
- review articles summarizing the current status of knowledge in important areas of epidemiology, either established or developing
- specially selected proceedings from various international symposia

In addition to these articles, Annals of Epidemiology is packed with pertinent information in the form of brief reports, methodologic issues involved in conducting epidemiologic research, editorials, and letters to the editor.

The primary focus of all articles is on new developments concerning issues of major importance in clinical medicine and public health.
